Jefferson suffers more COVID-19 cases

Governments backtracking while virus numbers surge

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
NEW DELHI — Governments are stepping up testing and reimposing restrictions as newly confirmed coronavirus infections surge in many countries. India reported 20,000 on Monday, while the caseload in the U.S. is growing by about 40,000 a day.

The United States on Monday reported 38,800 newly confirmed infections, with the total surpassing 2.5 million, or about a quarter of the more than 10 million cases worldwide, according to a tally by Johns Hopkins University.

5 new cases reported over the weekend

BY COLLIN OVERTON
Jefferson County saw its highest spike of COVID-19 cases in a month this past weekend, but only time will tell if that's indicative of bigger increases in the virus locally.
The Indiana State Department of Health reported four new cases in Jefferson Friday and another on Saturday, showing the highest uptick in cases since May 17 as the state readies for Stage 5 of reopening. State and county totals have otherwise been on a steady decline since the peak in April, but Jefferson County Health Officer John Hossler thinks residents need to remember why the curve began to flatten in the first place.

“Just looking around, you go into the stores and there's not a whole lot of people wearing masks. And that's probably the one thing, next to social distancing, that can help. I don't think Madison would be overwhelmed, but that certainly doesn't portend to a good trend, but you can't really establish a trend over one day's cases,” Hossler said.

With that in mind, Hossler said he expected to see an uptick with the recent reopenings of restaurants, stores and an overall relaxed attitude about the pandemic three months in.

Distracted driving law goes into effect July 1

BY COLLIN OVERTON
Drivers be warned going into July and the upcoming holiday weekend: not only will police be observing to make sure you're driving sober, they'll also be looking to see if you have a phone in your hand.
Indiana joined 21 other states and Washington D.C. in February when it passed the hands-free law, House Bill 1070, on March 18, making it illegal to hold a cellphone while driving.
While laws against texting while driving were already in place, the new law makes it

‘Operation Dry Water’ to target boating under the influence

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT
Indiana Conservation Officers have issued a warning to boaters gearing up for the Independence Day holiday — officers will be out patrolling the waterways and recreational boating checkpoints and they will be on high alert for violations of boating-under-the-influence laws.
The patrols, which are part of the year-round Operation Dry Water enforcement initiative, will be heightened from July 3-5 as more boaters than normal are expected to hit Indiana's rivers and lakes to celebrate the holiday.
Indiana Conservation Officers, in partnership with the National Association of State Boating Law Administrators and the U.S. Coast Guard, will focus on educating boaters about safe boating practices, including keeping alcohol off boats for both operators and passengers.
Officers will be on the lookout for impaired boaters. Boaters will notice an overall increase in patrols, both on the water and at recreational boating checkpoints, to remove dangerous and

ANNIVERSARY: 50TH

Hossler

John Paul Hossler, and Colleen Ann Smith Hossler, of Madison, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on Friday, July 3, 2020.

They were married at the Pilgrim United Church of Christ in Cincinnati, on July 3, 1970, and moved to Madison in 1979 when Dr. John Hossler began his life's work at the former Madison Clinic.

He is currently a family physician at King's Daughters Health and serves on the Jefferson County Health Board while Colleen taught special education and first grade in Richmond, Indiana, and Cincinnati, and loved working at the Perfect Gift in Madison before becoming a full-time mom and grandmother. They are members of Calvary Baptist Church in Madison.

They have three daughters, Katie Hossler of Fairborn, Ohio, Robin Hossler Gamble of Madison and Aimee Hossler Hrunek of Loveland, Ohio, and a son, Andy Hossler of Carbondale, Illinois; and 11 grandchildren — Hannah, Adin, Silas, Asher, Midian, Keziah, Eden, Mercy, Carter, Finley, Aubrey — with grandchild No. 12 expected in July and an adoption in the near future.

The couple will celebrate with family and friends.

“I kind of expected an uptick as we opened up and got a little more lax, but I think that’s what you’re seeing across the country, is people are not paying attention. They just think it’s all over, that we’re back to normal — we’re not. This just kind of reinforces the fact that we’re not out of this,” he said.

What’s kept Jefferson County mostly safe so far, he said, is isolation from interstate corridors and traffic from higher-population areas. Other communities on both sides of the river and closer to the interstate haven’t been so lucky, with Dearborn, Ripley, Jennings and Scott Counties all having at least 100 cases while Clark County has 613 cases and 44 deaths.

Carroll County in Kentucky saw its case count jump from 28 to 35 last Thursday after the virus was confirmed in five residents and two employees at a long term care facility, according to the Three Rivers District Health Department. Previously, a long-term health facility there reported eight cases including one employee. The health department’s public information officer, Christina Perkins, was not available Monday for comment.

Of Carroll’s 35 cases, at least nine have recovered and 13 are asymptomatic. Long-term care residents make up a significant portion of the county’s cases, with 14 cases confirmed at different facilities prior to Thursday’s update. No deaths have been reported there so far.

COVID has taken a similar toll on Carroll’s neighbor to the north, Gallatin County, which was last reported to have 61 cases — 38 of those involving long-term care residents. Six county residents there have died.

Further south and closer to Louisville, other Kentucky counties are reporting much higher totals. Shelby County, also in the North Central District, has reported 456 cases and 11 deaths, while Henry County has 31 cases and one death.

Trimble County, meanwhile, is also benefiting from isolation and reporting seven cases as of Monday morning, with the last reported on June 19. All cases have recovered and none have died, according to the North Central District Health Department.

The state of Kentucky altogether is reporting 13,839 cases and 536 deaths, while Indiana has reported 45,228 cases and 2,432 deaths, but with a higher testing capacity. Another 192 probable deaths have been recorded in Indiana for patients whose symptoms match up with the virus but no positive test is on record.

Nationwide, however, the U.S. saw some of its highest totals yet this weekend with more than 40,000 new cases daily as states like Florida and Georgia reopened with more lenient social distancing plans, according to the Associated Press.

Jefferson County residents will have to do their part to make sure the community isn’t a factor in future spikes and a second wave when it comes, Hossler said.

“They still say this is just part of the first wave, we haven’t even gotten into the second wave yet, let alone flu season,” Hossler said.

impaired boaters from the waterways and highways.

“Alcohol use can impair a boater’s judgment, balance, vision and reaction time,” said Lt. Kenton Turner, Indiana boating law administrator. “Every year, we see boating accidents and tragedies that could have been avoided, had alcohol or drug use not been a factor.”

Operating a vessel under the influence of alcohol or drugs is illegal on all bodies of water, and can lead to serious injuries and consequences. In Indiana it is illegal to operate a vessel with a blood alcohol concentration (BAC) level of .08 or higher — the same BOC for land vehicles.

Indiana Conservation Officers remind boaters to always boat sober and to wear a life jacket when on the water.

tation Cabinet (KYTC) announced that it is joining the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) to remind drivers that “Buzzed Driving Is Drunk Driving” and enforcement will be vigilant over the Fourth of July holiday

According to NHTSA, impaired driving fatalities typically spike during holidays.

“If you are under the influence of any substance and choose to get behind the wheel, you put everyone on the road in danger, including yourself,” said KYTC Secretary Jim Gray, noting the holidays create dangerous road conditions when drivers choose to drive while impaired.

“During the Fourth of July holiday, make sure to have a sober, designated driver for all your festivities.”

Last year in Kentucky, there were 66 crashes due to a drunken and/or drugged driver over the Fourth of July holiday period, resulting in 28 injuries and four deaths.

“Impaired driving is 100% preventable,” said KYTC Office of Highway Safety Acting Executive Director Jason Siwula. “Drivers must understand that drugs and/or alcohol not only hinder your ability to drive, but also affect your judgment about whether you can or should drive. You may think you’re fine, but impairment slows judgment, coordination and reaction times.”

To prevent impaired driving tragedies from occurring, the KYTC recommends the following:

- Before the festivities begin, plan a way to safely get home at the end of the night;
- If you’re impaired, use a ride-booking company, taxi, call a sober friend or family member, or use public transportation to get home safely;
- If you see an impaired driver, safely pull over and contact law enforcement. You may dial the KSP toll-free line directly at 1-800-222-5555 or call 911.
- If you know people who are about to drive or ride while impaired, take their keys and help them make other arrangements to get them safely to where they are going.
- Wear a seat belt! It is not only the law, it is the best defense against an impaired driving. Buckling up helps prevent injury and death if involved in a crash.

“We want all Kentuckians to enjoy their Independence Day celebrations,” said Siwula. “All we ask is that you make smart choices and celebrate responsibly.”

Operating a vessel under the influence of alcohol or drugs is illegal on all bodies of water, and can lead to serious injuries and consequences. In Indiana it is illegal to operate a vessel with a blood alcohol concentration (BAC) level of .08 or higher — the same BOC for land vehicles.

Mini-hydros hit the water on Krueger Lake

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Krueger Lake County Park at the former Jefferson Proving Grounds was a buzz with the sounds of mini-hydros on Saturday for the annual Dennis Holt Memorial Race presented by ServPro of Madison.

The event, which typically kicks off the week-long Madison Regatta Festival, was a solo affair this year with all other Regatta festivities, other than the fireworks, canceled. More than 60 radio-controlled boats in 15 different categories competed despite windy and rainy conditions.

“It was a tough race on a lot of boats,” said Kevin Lichlyter, one of the event’s organizers. “The lake, which is typically a calm course, must have taken notes from the Wild Bill Cantrell Ohio River Course.”

Shane rides penalty to first-ever E-League victory

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Whether sitting in the cockpit or behind a computer screen, Jimmy Shane just finds a way to win.

Shane’s first foray into the world of virtual hydroplane racing looked a lot like his real job when he steered the U-1 Miss HomeStreet/Miss Madison to the first-ever H1 Unlimited Driver’s Invitational race on the virtual waters of Lake Guntersville, Alabama, on Saturday.

Driving from his living room in Maple Valley, Washington, Shane won his first preliminary in Heat 1B then overcame a jumping the gun penalty in Heat 2A and a third-place finish in 3B to make the final heat.

A little bit of luck, coupled with being in the right place at the right time, handed Shane the win. Trailing the leaders in third place, Shane was just a spectator when Jamie Nilsen’s U-11 J&D’s collided with Taylor Evans’ U-99.9 Bucket List Racing Miss Rock, sending Evans into the air. Nilsen, who finished the race first on the water, was penalized one minute for lane encroachment and Shane was awarded the win.

Hi Unlimited
MISS HOMESTREET/

“I’m not sure what happened in front of me. I had a great start and was just trying to run a clean race because I figured with six boats on the water there was probably going to be a penalty,” said Shane, who said that he didn’t realize that he had won until after the race was over. “Taylor was running some quick laps and then I saw him go across my windshield and I was like, ‘OK, let’s just keep going.’”

The race was H1’s third virtual race of the month using the HydroSim software package but the first with actual H1 drivers competing. Miss Madison drivers Shane and Jeff Bernard have both served as spotters in previous races and it was Bernard who was on the radio when Kelsey Best drove the HomeStreet to victory “at” Madison two weeks ago.

Shane was one of five H1 drivers to compete in the event and, like the others, spent the week prior practicing to get used to the controls.

“I’ve had a lot of help these past few days from my good buddy Kelsey Best getting ready for this event,” Shane said. “I’ve been slowly getting the hang of this. This is much harder than driving the real boat. These boats are really hard and the controls are really finicky. I’ve been driving the real boats for 25 years and 13 years in the actual Unlimited boats and I have a pretty good feel for driving one of the real boats but this is all new to me. It’s a pretty good challenge.”

The H1 drivers fared pretty well against their more seasoned foes. Aaron Salmon finished third in the U-440 Bucket List Racing while Bert Henderson was fourth in the U-7 Spirit of Detroit and Nilsen placed fifth. Evans, who recovered from his flip to finish second, was the only non-H1 driver to run in the top five.

Like Shane, Henderson was new to the sport but was able to claim a preliminary heat win. He echoed Shane’s comments on the difficulty of the E-League.

“We’re used to one thing and then you get into one of these things and it’s completely different,” Henderson said. “These guys that race these things all the time are pretty talented. I was pretty proud of myself for a 152, 153 (mph in qualifying) and then you see these guys do 160. My hat’s off to them.

“My hands were sweating. It was almost like actually being in the heat; you’re just putting yourself right there. It’s such a cool thing,” Henderson added.

“Hat’s off to Scott (Pryzbyski) for putting out such a great game. With the realism with the waves and everything, it’s pretty cool and awesome.”

Although the race was virtual, the Lake Guntersville HydroFest plans on awarding Shane the actual Southern Cup trophy for the win at a later date. Shane won the real race in Guntersville last year.

Along with Shane, Henderson, Salmon and Nilsen, Corey Peabody was the other H1 driver in the race, steering his U-98 Graham Trucking American Dream. Madison native and Miss Madison crewmember Trey Holt drove the U-91 Goodman Real Estate/Miss Madison in place of Bernard, who was unable to attend, while Travis Johnson, another Madison native, drove the U-12 Graham Trucking for J. Michael Kelly, who was also unavailable. Race designer Pryzbyski steered the U-9 Delta/RealTrac to round out the nine-boat field.

Like the two previous broadcasts, veteran announcer Brad Luce was on the call and was joined by two-time national HydroSim champion Eddie Kanfoush as analyst.

H1 has not yet announced the date of its next E-League race, but the organization plans on running races at all five H1 Unlimited race sites. The actual H1 season has been canceled due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Protect your catharsis

Dear Annie: I recently read the letter from A Better Man Today, who was concerned about people reading his personal diary, particularly about his “dark times.”

I agree with your answer but would like to add one more idea. Create a “burn box” and entrust it to someone who will not open it or divulge its contents but will see that it is destroyed upon your death or at your request. I read about this once upon a time and apologize for not recalling the origin. I suspect it was from the military.

I shared this idea with a very dear friend of mine years ago because she also journaled and was concerned about how her children might react to her words and deepest feelings. She created her burn box, sealed it and left instructions that it was to be given to me. I understood that once

I received it, I was to burn it.

She may have cleaned it out and destroyed the contents already. I don’t know and don’t need to know at this point. But this may be another way for A Better Man Today to have some peace of mind about his most personal, deepest thoughts.

Dear Burn Box: What a clever idea. Thank you for your suggestion.

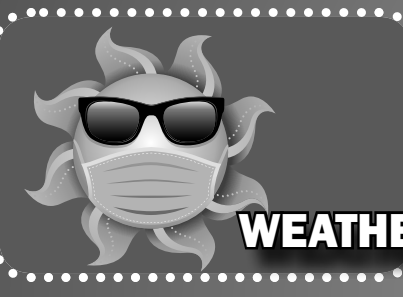

Dear Annie: I resisted responding to the first letter you received in regard to eliminating mice, but after reading another on that subject this morning, I decided to add my experience.

When I lived in my previous house, I would get a mouse visitor every so often, so I set out a cage trap. I was delighted to discover that each one I caught had a facial expression and personality all its own. For example, one looked at me with great irritation, and I could almost hear it thinking, “You’ve got some nerve. Just wait till I get out of here”; another was quite afraid and huddled as far away from me as possible; another had a sweet expression and looked at me as if to say it would like to know more about me. I would drive each one to a wooded area away from houses and let them free. — Missing My Mice

Dear Missing My Mice: Your sweet story makes me imagine them like little cartoon characters. Maybe you could write a children’s story about them. All people and animals have unique personalities and characteristics that make them special. It is beautiful you noticed that in little mice.

Choosing words wisely

Dear Annie: I was reading "Don't Call Me 'Dear'" and wanted to give you my two cents' worth. I am a woman, 72 years old. If someone calls you "dear," "sweetie," "sweetheart" or something like this, you should take it as a compliment. This applies whether the person doing the calling is a woman or a man, and it doesn't matter if the person is a friend, relative or stranger; it would be a very nice comment. Life is too short to get upset with "little" things in the world. Just deal with it! — Gloria in Texas

Dear Gloria: Thank you for your perspective, which is shared by many readers. But still others, such as the nurse who wrote the next letter, feel that those greetings by strangers are inappropriate. Dear Annie: I agree with "Don't Call Me 'Dear.'" I worked in a nursing home for 20 years, and one of the things that the state inspectors would get you on is calling a resident "dear," "honey," "sweetie" or something similar because it is disrespectful. The only way it was OK was if the resident wanted to be called that, and it was clearly documented in their care plan. I hate it when someone waiting on me at a store or restaurant calls me "dear" or any of the above-mentioned names. To me, it is disrespectful, even if that is not the intent. And in most cases, I'm sure it is not. But it is still wrong. — Don't Call Anyone Dear

Dear Don't Call Anyone Dear: You make a good point, and I thank you for expressing it. This is one issue where all readers will have to make their own decisions. I do believe that the more we live with love in our hearts and don't sweat the small stuff, the happier we will be.

Dear Annie: My husband passed away unexpectedly last year. During our 13-year marriage, unbeknownst to me, he had showered his adult children with gifts of all kinds, including vacations.

However, he was very frugal when it came to our wants and needs. I had no idea of the extent of the expenses until finding out in probate that his adult children got everything left to them: a cash amount over a million dollars, an undisclosed property, an undisclosed house and numerous other undisclosed gifts.

Well, there is a law regarding fiduciary duties, in that a spouse, by law, must inform the other spouse of these gifts and also get, in writing, that the other spouse knows and agrees to the gifts, whether it be money or items. In case of a divorce, the spouse, not having given the other spouse notice, nor obtaining, in writing, an agreement, will be responsible for restitution to the unknowing spouse. — Upset About the Way Things Happened

Dear Upset: I am very sorry that you had to deal with this all of these surprises after the unexpected death of your husband. Shock and grief compound each other, and I'd be cautious of them clouding your judgment, particularly in your relationship with your husband's children. Your husband deceived you, and sadly, he is not here to work through this with you. However, there are resources to help you come out of this a stronger person without resentment. A therapist or counselor can give you some emotional and mental support, and legal counsel can give you financial guidance. It might not be easy, but, slowly, that upset will diminish.
